PARTICIPANT ASSISTANCE & SUPPORT POLICY

Floyd County Parks and Recreation (FCPR) welcomes adults of all abilities to participate in our Active Adults programs, activities, classes, and trips. Our goal is to provide a safe, enjoyable, and inclusive experience for everyone.
Participants should be able to safely participate independently or attend with a family member, caregiver, or support person who can provide any personal assistance they may need.

FCPR staff are available to coordinate programs, provide activity instructions, and assist with general program-related needs. However, staff are not trained or assigned to provide ongoing one-on-one care or personal assistance. This may include assistance with:

- Restroom use or personal hygiene
- Eating, drinking, or medication management
- Dressing or changing clothing
- Transfers to or from wheelchairs, vehicles, seating, or equipment
- Ongoing wheelchair or mobility assistance
- Continuous individual supervision

Active Adults programs are designed to provide recreational, social, educational, and wellness opportunities in a group setting. Because staff are responsible for the program and all participants attending, individualized personal care or continuous one-on-one supervision cannot be provided.
If a participant requires personal care, mobility assistance, frequent individual supervision, or other ongoing support in order to safely participate, they should attend with a family member, caregiver, or support person who can provide that assistance.
For activities or trips requiring paid admission or registration, a support person may also be required to register and pay any applicable participation or admission costs.

MEMORY, ORIENTATION & SUPERVISION NEEDS

FCPR understands that participants may have different levels of memory, orientation, or cognitive support needs. Having memory difficulties does not automatically prevent someone from participating in Active Adults programs.
However, participants should be able to safely remain with the group, follow basic directions, recognize or communicate their needs, and participate without requiring continuous individual supervision from FCPR staff.
If a participant may become disoriented, wander away from the group, need frequent redirection or reminders, have difficulty recognizing their surroundings, or otherwise require close supervision to participate safely, FCPR may ask that the participant attend with a family member, caregiver, or support person.

FCPR staff may contact the participant's emergency contact or support person if concerns arise regarding the participant's safety or ability to continue participating without additional assistance.
Whenever possible, participants or family members are encouraged to contact FCPR before an activity or trip to discuss any accommodations or support needs.

APPROPRIATE BEHAVIOR POLICY

Active Adults programs are intended to provide a welcoming, respectful, and enjoyable environment for everyone. Participants are adults and normal adult conversation, humor, and social interaction are expected. However, participants are also expected to treat fellow participants, FCPR staff, volunteers, instructors, community partners, and members of the public with respect.
Behavior determined by FCPR staff to be inappropriate, disruptive, unsafe, or disrespectful will be addressed. This may include, but is not limited to:

- Excessive or aggressive foul language
- Insults, bullying, teasing, intimidation, or intentionally hurtful comments
- Sexual comments, jokes, gestures, or conversations.

FLOYD™

APPROPRIATE BEHAVIOR POLICY CONTINUED

- Harassment or unwanted attention toward another participant, staff member, volunteer, or member of the public
- Discriminatory, threatening, or degrading remarks
- Yelling, aggressive behavior, or repeated disruption of an activity
- Unwanted physical contact or invasion of another person's personal space
- Refusal to follow reasonable safety instructions from FCPR staff, instructors, drivers, or activity leaders
- Behavior that creates a safety concern for the participant or others
- Repeated conduct that interferes with another participant's ability to comfortably enjoy the program.

When concerns arise, FCPR staff will address the situation based on the circumstances. Depending on the nature or frequency of the behavior, this may include a verbal reminder, private conversation, contacting a caregiver or emergency contact when appropriate, removal from the current activity, or limitations on future participation.
FCPR reserves the right to take appropriate action when necessary to protect the safety, comfort, and enjoyment of participants, staff, volunteers, and community partners.
